“ Linda - You know what your mom meant to me. She was my second mother. I loved her dearly. She always spoke her mind and you knew not to cross her. We had a lot of good times. I know she has met up with my mom and the two of them are talking non-stop. As I told you, when I'm recovered we will go out for brunch like when we used to take them out and raise a glass to them. Love to you and your family.

“ I appreciate that Aunt Belvie always ‘kept it real’. She always spoke her truth and she expected others to do the same. Aunt Belvie was ‘uncensored’ and I loved her for that. I hope that all of you remember her with fondness, for it was joy to be in her presence.

Ain't Belvia was always a real deal talker. She would say what needed to be said and start to walk away only to return and share the "Paul Harvey" rest of the story. I loved her sharing stories.
