“ I am very blessed. My sister Joanie was born nearly six years before me and she was graciously welcomed the role of big sister. She chose the role of being a “little mother “to me! My earliest memory of her is of her carrying me around and doting on me like a little mother. She never spoke a harsh word to me. Even though we were born five years apart Joanie never excluded me from what she was able to participate in as kids. On one occasion Joanie was participating in a volunteer function for church that I was not old enough to join in(I was 11 and Joanie was around 16). Joanie gave me the very important job of polishing her white moccasins including cleaning the polish that may have gotten on the beads that were on the moccasins! Joanie was a very meticulous person and generous as well. I got 25 cents for the task. Back then that was big money! By her giving me that small task to do for her I really felt I was doing something important and she knew that. Joanie was a person of strong faith and she loved with her whole heart asking for nothing in return. Not many people are as fortunate as I to have a big sister, little mother, and best friend in one tiny package.

“ I have several memories I could share but this was one I'll never forget. My parents would take us to visit my aunt and uncle and I loved that as I had all girl cousins to spend time with. My uncle would often take out his recording equipment which we thought was a really great thing. We'd all get turns singing (or my brother would get to play his accordion sometime) and he would cut records of our performances. We thought we were big shots. It was so much fun! We'd laugh and make fun of each other! Might not have been wealthy but we were "rich" in other ways. Jo, May you now be in peace with our loving Lord. Bless you, your cousin Rosie.

“ From Elizabeth (LoGalbo) Stack
Joanne Kasper is my Auntie Joannie so I've know her my entire life. What I can tell you is that I have never known her any other way but to be smiling . She has the most beautiful smile and the cutest laugh and I can hear it now. She would always call me "dolly " or "love". What a beautiful testimony of Gods love to radiate His love back into the world.
Auntie I love you and I'm so happy you are held in the arms of your Creator at last.

“Joannie (my older sister by two years) will always be the beautiful and fragile model of my life. There are so many precious memories that I hold close to my heart - that I sat for hours trying to choose one that spoke of her gentle nature.

Because of limited space on our house, Joannie and I shared many aspects and experiences in life. We weren't allowed to go anywhere or participate in any activity without the other one present. This got to be a little challenging (even in pre-teen) because I liked to run a lot and Joannie felt that was too dangerous. Besides, she ran the risk of getting her always pristine white socks dirty!

Joannie did everything with a gentle flare. She was precise about our doll's tea parties; neat and organized about our playtime projects; and fastidious about our shared drawer space.

She was always patient with my lack of enthusiasm over her persistent attention to a gentle approach and loving execution of every project.

One of Joannie's responsibilities was to retrieve the mail from the mailbox that was secured to our front porch. In my opinion, that job did not require a whole lot of thought or preparation. Yet everyday it seemed to take my sister longer and longer to accomplish it! Why did I care?? Well I couldn't move on to our next project (which probably was something I cared more about) without her.

I finally decided to see how I could help motivate her into spending less time with such a simple task. So, I followed her around giving her helpful suggestions!

First she washed her face. Then, at times, she changed her clothes. Then she carefully brushed her hair and put it into a sleek pony tail. Then she put on lip gloss. By that time, I was crumbling under my exhausting efforts to hasten this process.

In exasperation I asked her "Why do you have to go through all that work to get the mail from the front porch?!" She answered me in her soft, demure and prepared response. "You never know who you might meet out there."

I am sure my beautiful, loving and gentle sister is now a light and model to souls in heaven.

*My eternal love
Gracia*

“ Joanne was one of the sweetest people I've ever met. I'll always remember the days of Fr. Lino's choir and the fun we all had, especially with Gracia at the organ. I know she is now enjoying the choir of angels for heaven gained a beautiful angel. RIP dear Joanne. My sincere condolences go out to Stan and family.
